Minden aims to limit taxes to 7%

Minden Council will be pulling back on the reins in order to deliver a budget translating into seven per cent tax increase.

"Seven per cent is tying us down pretty tight," Reeve Ray Moore said in his opening comments at last Thursday's meeting, but I think we should shoot for it."

The process of drafting a municipal budget for 1990 is still in the preliminary stages, and the Reeve was encouraging his fellow council members to aim for no more than a seven per cent hike.

"I have gone through a possible synopsis of a budget target figure for Anson, Hindon and Minden of only a seven per cent increase in taxes," Moore said, reading from a perpared statement. This would bring the municipal budget up to $3.325 million.

"This, of course, does not reflect the million and a half dollars for education or an increased county levy, which is anticipated."

Moore, who is also a member of county council, said he expects increases in the county budget "due to provincial initiatives on waste management, official plan, economic development and restructuring."

Moore also notes that provincial and federal grant cutbacks are forcing municipalities to raise more money locally. Upon reviewing the draft 1989 revenues and expenditures, he found a $150,000 shortfall in conditional and unconditional grant s from the province. In addition, Moore notes that payments by federal and provincial agencies in lieu of taxes are not even keeping pace with inflation.

"It appears that each year the burden of municipal government is being transferred onto the backs of our local taxpayers.

The erosion of grants from upper-tier governments means municipalities must either raise more money locally in order to provide the same services. Moore says this could be accomplished by attracting new commercial and industrial developments to the municipality.

"What we need is an increase in comercial and industrial development assessment," said the Reeve. "And to get this we need to encourage those types of entrepreneurs to locate and build in Anson, Hindon and Minden.

"Housing and affordable housing will come at its own pace," he said.

Space shortage scuttles apartments

A shortage of parking spaces has forced two developers to downscale their plans for a bowling alley along Minden's Main Street.

Terry Clarke and Darryl Moore have cut the second-story apartments from their project in order to meet the municipality's minimum parking requirements, council was told last Thursday.

The developers were struggling to find a way to fit the necessary parking spaces into their plans, but found it impossible, council was told. They approached council to make sure their revised plans for a single-story building will adhere the minimum parking requirements.

"We'd like to know ahead of time what is and isn't alright as far as parking," Clarke told council. The project has already received approval in principle, but there was some doubt that there would be enough room on the site to accommodate all the necessary parking.

The developers said the apartments that had been planned for the second story of the building had to be eliminated because they would require an additional six parking spaces. The revised plans include an eight-lane bowling facility with a snack bar, lounge and an area for video games.

Council had no objections to the revisions. In fact, they applauded the developers for revising their plans for the entranceway onto the property.

In order to limit the number of entrances onto Main Street, the developers are planning to put in a mutual driveway to be used for the bowling lanes and the adjacent property.

Council and the Planning Advisory Committee have both expressed concerns about traffic problems that might arise from the growing number of entrances onto this street. A traffic study for this part of Main Street has already been initiated to assist council when future developments are proposed along the strip.

Councillor Mike Maher said the concept of a mutual drive for the two properties "is an excellent idea." He also expressed regret that the apartments had to be eliminated from the project.

Deputy Reeve Bern Berry, who also praised the plan for a mutual drive, reminded the developers of the towship's concerns regarding flooding that might result from new developments on this part of Main Street. Clarke assured him that he is willing to work with neighbouring property owners to address this and other issues.

"We're willing to work with people all along the strip to try to have conformity," he said. Moore said he wants his development to blend in with the surrounding properties.

Reeve Ray Moore, who is related to the developers, declared a pecuniary interest and excused himself from the meeting prior to any discussions.

Former publisher, Grenville Stamp, dead at 57

A former publisher of THE TIMES Grenville Stamp of West Guilford, has died. Mr. Stamp passed away Wednesday at Civic Hospital in Peterborough.

Stamp, along with Minden businessman Ron Gambell, owned THE TIMES briefly between September 1978 and June 1979 after acquiring the newspaper from Bill Foote.

A year after selling the newspaper, Stamp was severely injured in a car accident when the vehicle he was driving collided with a county roads department truck on (what is now) Highway 118 east of Carnarvon. As a result of the accident, Stamp was paralysed and he spent the last ten years confined to a wheel chair or bed.

Despite his medical condition, Stamp still managed to get out on occasion in his wheel chair. He attended special events in the community and maintained his interest in local affairs. He took a particular interest in the construction of the 18 bed chronic care addition which was proposed for the Haliburton Hospital. His condition, which meant family and friends often had to travel to Peterborough to visit with him, was often used as an example of why the facility was needed in the area. Stamp attended a public meeting last November at which the community expressed its anger at the provincial government for delays in the construction of the promised addition.

Grenville Stamp was 57 years of age. He is survived by his wife Fay, children Craig, Derrell, Wade and Lynne, four grandchildren, brothers Brant, Marjorie, Eunice, Lyle and Donelda and predeceased by Sharon.

The funeral service was held Friday.

Developers critical of Minden's new by-laws

Resignations are demanded from Deputy Reeve and two Planning Committee members

Sharp criticisms were fired at Minden's new development by-laws Thursday and the Deputy Reeve and some members of the Planning Advisory Committee were caught up in the crossfire.

Two local men voiced their objections to the townships' new by-laws, which were designed to prevent land flips and to limit the time that sites are allowed to remain partially excavated. A third expressed his dissatisfaction in a letter that was read aloud at Thursday's council meeting by township clerk Mary Mysyk.

In addition to the strong objections to these by-laws, two of the developers called for the dismissal of Dean Elliott and Bill Payne from the township's Planning Advisory Committee. One also demanded that Deputy Reeve Bern Berry resign from council.

In an effort to curb land speculation in the township and have tighter control on development, council developed a by-law that requires the preparation of a site plan in order for any property to be rezoned to Commercial status. A second by-law prohibits site excavations without a building permit and demands that construction begin within 60 days of the excavation date.

These by-laws were passed unanimously at a previous council meeting in response to concerns about three development sites on Main Street, south of the Rockcliffe Tavern.

Thursday's objections came from the owners of two of sites and from a contractor hired to do their excavations.

"I don't think this council has done anything to help the developers get on with the projects and clear the excavation sites up," Larry Hughes contended.

Hughes was hired by developers Brad Bradamore, Bruce Harris and Ted Reid to dig up their properties in preparation for developments. These properties have since been described by the Deputy Reeve as the "three scars on Main Street."

"For the last year, you have watched your planning committee abuse your official plan and the by-laws of our town for their own personal vendetta against anyone trying to develop the east side of Bobcaygeon Road (Main Street)," Hughes read from prepared statement. He noted that the development sites are all across the street from the home of PAC chairman Dean Elliott.

"I have witnessed the red tape and the 'slow-them-down, screw-them-up, tell-them-it's-wrong, tell-them-it's-right, do-it-again' attitude ever since a plot plan came under discussion for Doug (Johnson) and Ted (Reid's) lot."

Hughes said PAC deliberately stalled Johnson's and Reid's plans to build a plaza on their property and called on council to remove those involved in real estate from the committee. (Elliott and Payne)

In regard to the concerns about land speculation, Hughes said it is only logical that people want to sell their property at a profit. "Let's face it, every real estate agent, everyone in this town sells at a profit." He said even council was guilty of this when it recently sold the Village Green property.

"You have called all the people involved speculators," Hughes told council. "What do you call the town, who destroyed Welch's store and sold the property at a profit? That makes our own council flippers also." he said.

Calling the new by-laws a mistake, Hughes said co-operation from council will allow the projects to proceed "and there won't be any excavation sites to complain about."

Hughes also handed council a petition, he said contained the names of 155 people who oppose the new by-laws.

At the close of Hughes' presentation, council had no questions or comments to make. When pressed for a response, Reeve Ray Moore responded, "I don't want to open this up to a big heavy debate." He said the concerns expressed and the petition would be noted.

Moore said council believes the by-laws are necessary and advised Hughes that he has the right to request an Ontario Municipal Board Hearing if he wishes to pursue it further.

"Now what about our planning problem?" Hughes continued, referring to his call for the dismissal of Elliott and Payne from PAC. "We all know we have a planning problem."

Moore agreed that "it's a very important issue" and said it would be dealt with by council in a meeting of the Committee of the Whole. Depending on council's feelings, Moore said there could be a resolution coming from the committee.

A committee meeting to deal with the budget was scheduled for later that day, but Moore told The Times it was unlikely there would be any resolutions resulting.

Since Hughes' presentation did not use up all the time council had alotted for this issue, Moore asked if any councillors had objections to having the clerk read a letter from Bruce Harris.

"Let the letter speak for itself," replied Berry, whose actions as Deputy Reeve and a PAC member are criticized in the letter. "My record speaks for itself."

The letter opens with a demand for resignations from Berry, Elliott and Payne. Harris describes the frustration he has experienced in dealings with municipal councils here and in Brighton.

Harris said in his letter that he had vowed "never to tackle municipal politicians again" after his experience in Brighton. However, he changed his mind when the people of Minden elected "intelligent, progressive people like Ray Moore and Lewis Stevens. . .

"Then this new council hired a supremely intelligent, very progressive, open-minded, extremely competent and energetic building inspector, Brad Bradamore.

"In this new, refreshing political climate, I figured it was safe to start investing in my community," he said. Some of the projects he planned for his properties include a motel, several stores in town, an aluminum fabrication business. He was also involved in the proposed Mount Minden residential and commercial development.

Political hijacking

One of the ironies inherent in any democratic system is that the very freedoms of political involvement the system enshrines can often be abused and manipulated to the benefit of a few people.

The Victoria-Haliburton Federal Liberal Association is being set up as a victim of just such abuse.

The abusers are a group of pro-life activists who are attempting to dominate the selection process for picking delegates to the Liberal leadership convention this June.

On April 17, the association is meeting to elect 12 delegates to go to the convention to help choose a new national leader for the party. But an organized group of pro-life supporters have bought a large block of memberships to ensure that the 12 delegates share thier views opposing abortion.

This amounts to a political hijacking of the open-party system in the name of a single issue and a view point not held by all Liberals.

Not to take away from the importance of the abortion debate, but the issues involved in choosing a party leader, and contender for the position of Prime Minister, should be all-encompassing including debate on economic, social and foreign policy topics.

And what is even more alarming is that a handful of people, many of them with no former connection to the Liberal party, can impose their views on the entire association.

Potential legitimate candidates who have a real desire to scrutinize leadership hopefuls and their platforms will be pushed aside by individuals whose single concern is ensuring stricter abortion legislation.

And if the pro-lifers are successful in their bid to dominate the selection of delegates, what's to stop them from employing the same strategy when the association nominates a candidate for the next federal election?

It's a basic democratic principle that in an open-party system anyone can join a political party and vote in the delegate selection.

That a handful of people are able to come along and subject their narrow-minded crusade on Liberal supporters in the area, and in doing so remove the right of open debate on a variety of issues, is dangerous and decidedly undemocratic.

Give Arthur a jingle and make his day

If the phone doesn't ring, it's me.
Jimmy Buffet song title.

It probably sounds a tad ghoulish, but every once in a while I entertain the fantasy of resurrecting Alexander Graham Bell, grabbing him by the nape of his mouldy winding sheet, shaking him briskly and shouting "There! See what you started? Are you satisfied?"

It's the telephones, Mister Bell's most enduring legacy. They're everywhere. Americans make more than 350 million telephone calls every day. I'm pretty sure that citizen for citizen, Canadians are gabbier, but I can't prove it. I called the Public Relations department of Bell Canada to find out the Canadian figures.

The receptionist put me on hold.

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

But who need statistics? A decent pair of eyes will tell you we live in a plague of telephones and little beggars continue to multiply like minks in heat.

When I grew up the telephone was a huge wooden affair about the size of a gum machine, featuring brass bells, a gooseneck speaker and a crank on the side that summoned the operator. Telephones were furniture back then. And there was one to a household.

If you were lucky.

Nowadays, it's more like one to a room. We've got telephones in the living room and telephones in the den. There are kitchen telephones. The last hotel room I rented featured a telephone set into the tile wall right next to the john.

I can't begin to tell you how little I would appreciate, while on the john, a telephone call inviting me to subscribe to Macleans Magazine.

And you can't get away from phones by fleeing out the front door. They've invaded our cars. Last summer, I couldn't figure out why, even though traffic jams were more frequent the traffic-bound drivers around me seemed less hostile. There was much less horn-honking, cursing and waving of fists. Then I twigged. The drivers were less hostile because they busy yakking into their cellular car phones.

A blessing to our country

Editor

Regarding your article concerning 'English-only', the contents indicate a remarkable ignorance of the history of Canada.

A forebearer of mine 'viewed' what is now Connecticut from the deck of a ship in 1620. My ancestor appears to have spent a winter in the area and returned to his home in Britain. However, he came back again 15 years later to stay. The outbreak of the American Revolution caused his descendants to trek to what is now Nova Scotia. I hold a manuscript parchment for a grant of land in what was called the Half Way River area, now Truro.

The fact of the French Language being a part of our heritage should be viewed as a blessing for our country. There was a period when French was considered the diplomatic language among consulates and embassies throughout the world. Currently French has been replaced by English, although the spread of the use of English in most countries is a fact of life. The ability to converse in French should be a requirement in schools as this would reduce much of the resentment which still exists within the province of Quebec and in some places abroad.

Ink wasted

Editor

I can't but notice, when reading your paper, how you waste ink reporting such trivial matters as the Bradamore soap opera.

However, my concerns are directed to page 5 of the March 5 issue 'Opinions'. One (writer) says she is ashamed of the community in which she lives because we have jumped on the English-only bandwagon, which I (as an English-speaking person) am in total favour of. French language is not prevalent in this area, or in most of Ontario for that matter.

It is a total waste of millions of taxpayers' dollars to encourage a bilingual Canada. The French Quebecers are the ones who started all this nonsense. English-speaking Canada was always quite content.

I would encourage people to take a trip to Montreal or Quebec City and see how far your English gets you.

As far as the opening statement, "fairness to all", this would include not having French rammed down our throats.

Dennis Willison

P.S. If Quebec would like to seperate, I would be in favour of trading Labrador for the province of Quebec. That way they could really be outside Canada.

A phone that never rings, what a concept!

Calling up their stockbrokers or their mistresses.

Or the local radio station to deliver an on-the-spot report of a traffic jam.

Last year, Air Canada announced that soon their passengers would be able to take and receive telephone calls while they were flying, right in their seats. To which I can only offer a luke-warm 'whoopee'. The only two things I liked about air travel was the complimentary wine with dinner and the certain knowledge that, for the duration of the flight I would be beyond the reach of that jarring dingaling of a jangling telephone.

No more, alas. We are succumbing to terminal telephonitis. The planet is gradually being cocooned in a sarcophagus of telephone wire. The music of the spheres will be replaced by dial tone. A new religion will sweep the globe. Christianity, Islam, Judaism. Buddhism -- all the orthodox faiths will tumble into the crypt of history, while humanity in its billions will rush to embrace the new doctrine.

The Gospel According to Ernestine.

You think I'm overreacting? That's because you haven't heard the latest news. The federal communications department is licensing field trials of the Zone Phone. It's a lightweight, cordless gizmo about the size of your TV Channel Zapper. It folds small enough to slip in your shirt pocket and it's called 'the poor man's cellular phone'. Why? Because it costs about one-twentieth the price, that's why. Experts predict it'll sell for about $150.

You realize what this means? It means that virtually everybody will be able to afford their own portable phone. Which in turn means that the only time we'll be free from ringing telephones is when we're nude in the sauna.

Well, that's not quite true. The zone phone is cheap because it doesn't do some of the things a regular phone does. For instance, you can make a call on the Zone Phone, but you can't receive one.

A phone that doesn't receive calls. What a concept?

I wonder if they take trade-ins?

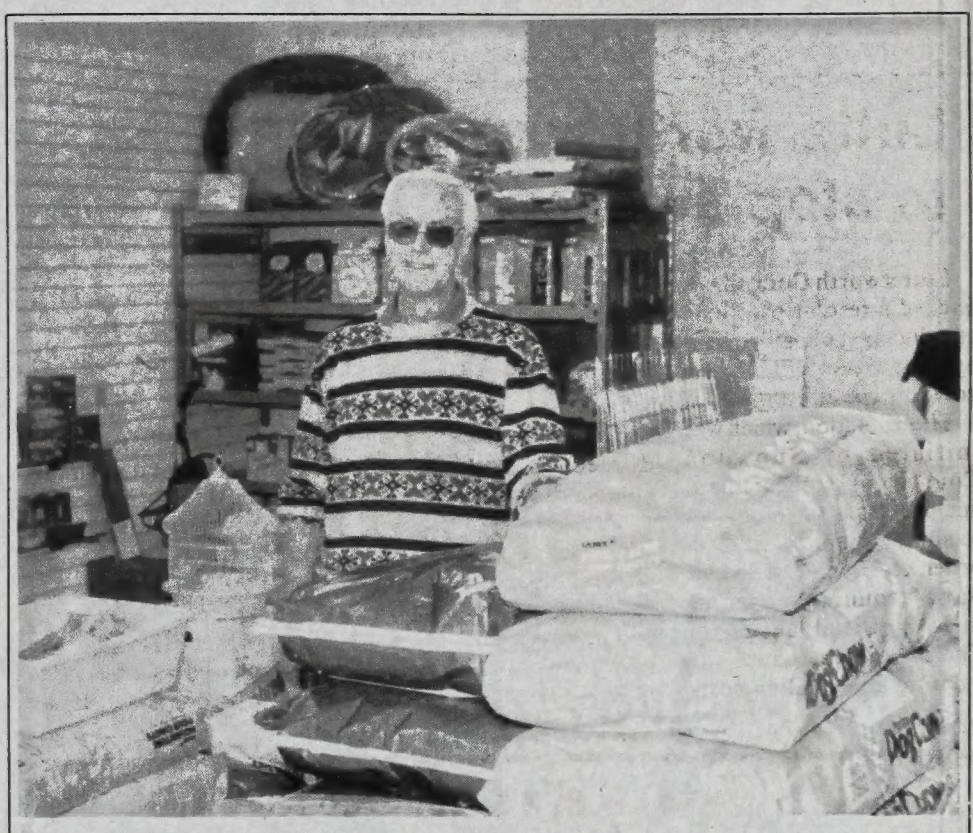
Four businesses open in the new Heritage Plaza

While it wasn't the grand opening for the Heritage Plaza at the intersection of Highway 35 and Main Street, four businesses in the complex opened their doors March 3. The new plaza features a variety of retail units on the upper level and business offices on the lower floor. The plaza was built by MMAS Ltd. whose principals include Lewis Stevens, his son Jason, Al Hudson and his son Darryl. In addition to the retail outlets now operating, other tennants planned for the facility include a clothing store, insurance office, restaurant and numerous other offices. The four businesses now open in the plaza are featured here.

Jean Stevens gave MP Bill Scott a tour of her new store, Heritage Gallery of Arts on the opening weekend. The retail outlet, in the new Heritage Plaza, features the work of local artists and craftspeople.



Surrounded by bags of dog food, proprietor Lloyd Brown is right at home in the new location of The Pet Food Place. The pet food supply store now occupies one of the units at the new Heritage Plaza on Highway 35 and Main Street.

Returning to a familiar setting, Marie Cox, right, has opened a clothing store in the Heritage Plaza. Staff members at Cox's Apparel include, from the left, Ginger Elliott, Molly McKenzie, Yvonne Penny and Carrie Burgess. Absent when the photo was take was Dawn Yateman.

Grants would help street work

Minden should apply for ministry funding for work on the south end of Main Street, a local developer has advised council.

Council, however, was not convinced at last Thursday's meeting that grants would be available within a reasonable time.

Brad Bradamore, who owns property on the east side of the road, said council should apply to the Ministry of Transportation for a 50 per cent subsidy of the cost of storm sewers, catch basins, curbs and sidewalks. He said this would help with proposed and existing developments along the strip.

Main Street, south of the Rockcliffe Tavern, has gained a lot of interest from developers over the last year. To keep pace with the growing traffic that will result from these developments, the municipality wants to have the road improved. Developers are being asked to install sidewalks and proper drainage to avoid flooding of the road.

Bradamore suggested that ministry funding is available to cover half the cost of this work. The municipality should then "kick in a little from the general coffers" assess property owners for the rest.

Bradamore said the municipality should further apply for assistance under the Ontario Neighbourhood Improvement Program (ONIP). The township should debenture the outstanding costs in order that property owners could pay their share over a number of years.

Reeve Ray Moore said he has learned from past experience that it normally takes more than two years to qualify for funds under ONIP.

Moore said it is only fair for developers to cover the cost of new services that are required as a result of their developments. "If you want to develop a subdivision, you have to pay for lights and water, etc."

Councillor Mike Maher later said it is not so easy to get ministry funding for these projects. He said the Ministry of Transportation is facing budget restraints and is not as willing to part with its money as Bradamore had indicated.

Plaza gets preliminary nod

Preliminary approval has been granted for the construction of a commercial plaza on Minden's Main Street.

Minden Council passed a resolution Thursday granting Doug Johnson approval in principle for his plans to develop the site, adjacent to the proposed bowling alley.

Reid supplied council with a revised sketch of his plans for the plaza. He said a sidewalk spanning the entire width of the property will be included and told council it is a better plan than the one originally proposed.

Approval in principal allows Johnson to go ahead and have a site plan drawn up with the confidence that council has no immediate objections to the proposal.

Lutterworth wants to stop avalanche

Lutterworth Council has backed a resolution aimed at reducing the costs created by the delivery of bilingual government literature.

The resolution, which was initiated by Snowdon Council, asks the federal and provincial governments to survey municipalities in order to prepare a list of those requiring materials in both official languages. The idea is to reduce the printing and mailing costs of sending material in both official languages to municipalities that only require it in one language.

The resolution was endorsed by Lutterworth Council at a recent meeting.

The same resolution was forwarded to Minden Council for its consideration last Wednesday. Minden Council, however, did not formally endorse the resolution.

Council attends convention

Minden's full representation at the Ontario Good Roads Conference will prove to be a valuable experience, the Reeve says.

In his opening comments at last Thursday's meeting, Ray Moore told his fellow councillors he hopes their attendance at the conference convinces them of the importance of their participation.

The recent conference in Toronto, which was attended by all five council members, was a valuable learning experience, said Moore.

The Reeve also commended road superintendent Clayton Cameron for his presentation to the provincial transportation minister at this conference.

"If the excellent presentation by our road superintendent to the minister of transporation comes to fruition—and I am confident that we have a very good chance that it may—then I think that it was well worth the effort put forth by this council to have attended."

Garbage from Faraday not wanted here

Minden Council is not willing to help Faraday Township out of its landfill problems, it was decided at last Thursday's council meeting.

Responding to a request for help from the municipality near Bancroft, Deputy Reeve Bern Berry quickly opposed the idea of allowing that municipality to use landfill sites in Minden.

Reeve Ray Moore noted a previous lack of interest from Faraday Township in participating in Haliburton County's waste management masterplan. He said the county asked this township if it would be willing to go in on a joint project and it refused.

"They said no" to the idea of participating in the study, Moore said. "And now the ministry is putting the squeeze on and they're looking for help."

Surplus not destined for reserve

A surplus of funds remaining in the Minden Recreation Committee budget at the end of the year should not be locked into a reserve fund, council decided Thursday.

The municipality is striving to limit this year's tax increase to seven per cent and can't afford to set aside the committee's surplus, councillors said while reviewing the committee's minutes.

The Recreation Committee has $20,000 left over from its 1989 budget and had recommended that this be placed into a reserve fund for arena repairs. Councillor and committee member Bob Sisson said there are problems with the arena that will be very costly to repair. He said the committee just wants to make sure the funds are available to work with.

It costs the municipality from $50,000 to $60,000 each year to run the arena. Sisson said he has tried unsuccessfully to find ways of having the facility turn a profit. The only way to break even on the arena is to close the doors, he said. "There's no way of making a profit."

Development bylaw comes under fire

"Then everything fell apart." He said said in the letter that he came to PAC to discuss the Mount Minden project and reached an agreement to go ahead with seven severances. He said Elliott and Berry were absent from that meeting.

However, He said he attended a later PAC meeting with "minor changes to the measurements" and was told the project would have to be dealt with through a plan of subdivision. Elliott and Berry were at this meeting, he notes in his letter.

Harris also notes that he owed $2,000 to PAC member Bill Payne, "who was obviously all too pleased to get even with me for not paying him yet."

Harris said he was "dumfounded and shocked because at that point I knew I'd been shafted an all my plans for everything were immediately destroyed . . . I just picked up my papers and walked out and I will never appear before these 'pillars of the community' again."

Harris says he will continue to press for the removal of the Berry, Elliott and Payne. He says Elliott and Payne cannot be impartial members of PAC given their potential for personal and financial gain. Unless a project is cleared by Elliott and Payne, it doesn't get passed, he says.

Harris also recommends a government investigation into the affairs of Deanwood Investments to see if there is the possibility of a conflict of interest.

Bradamore was the final person to address council, formally objecting only to the by-law regarding excavations. He drew council's attention to technical errors in the wording of the by-law and said it will not stand up in court.

The former by-law enforcement officer said he has reviewed the Ontario Building Code and found no regulations granting a municipality the authority to regulate excavations.

"I would like you to know it is my opinion that this has been used as a mockery of the system," Bradamore said.

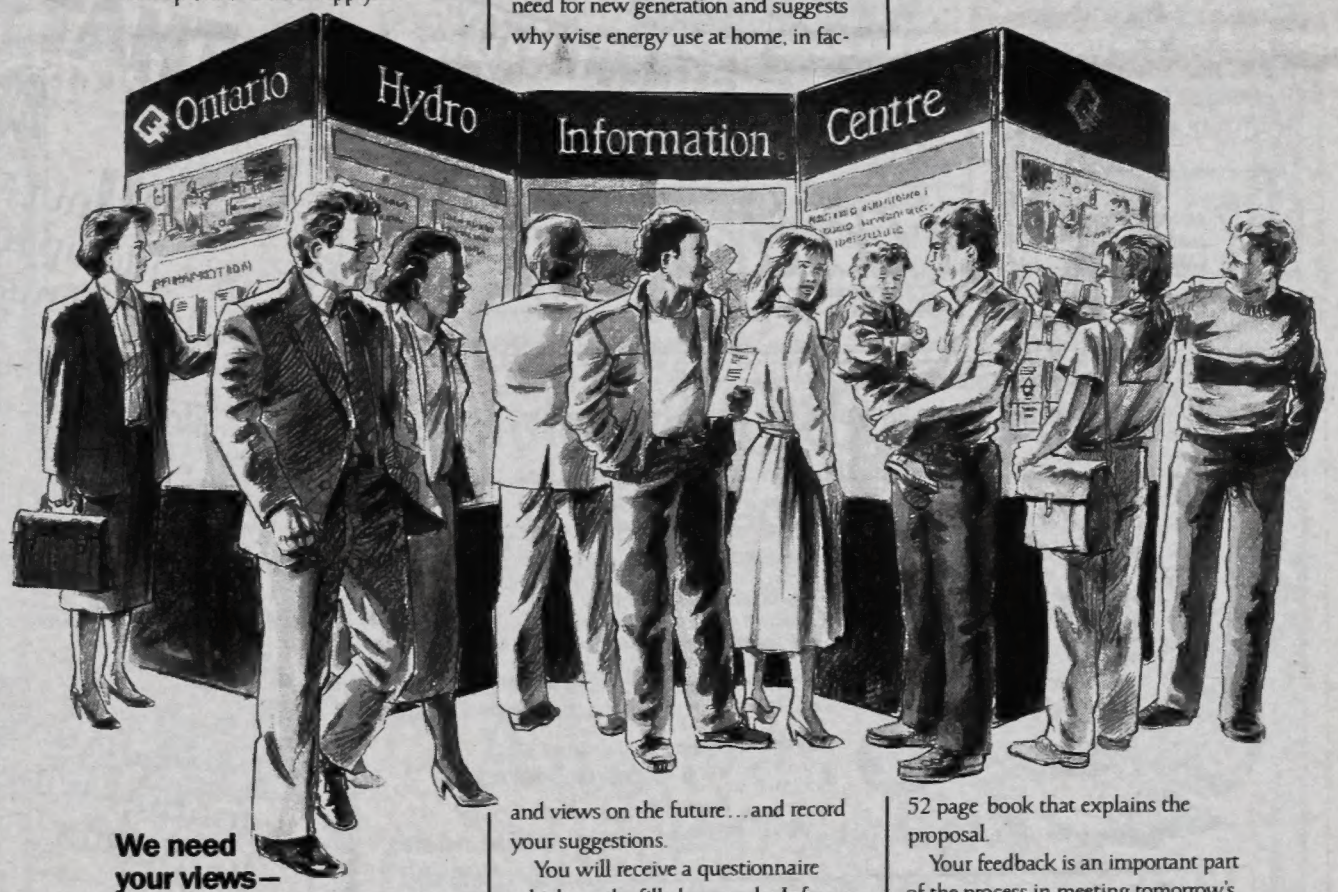
Ontario Hydro would like to share its thoughts on tomorrow's electricity needs

And we invite you to give us yours.

Over the years Ontario's appetite for electricity has been steadily growing. Within the next ten years, we face the very real possibility that demand may outstrip our available supply.

That's why Ontario Hydro has introduced "Providing The Balance of Power" a proposal that looks at how we can make the best possible use of all our existing resources, examines the possibilities of purchasing electricity from our neighbours, discusses the need for new generation and suggests why wise energy use at home, in factories and in the office is essential. It sets out the issues that will affect all our energy futures in the years ahead.

You're invited to discuss Providing the Balance of Power at the Ontario Hydro Information Centre.



We need your views— we need your feedback.

Staff at the Information Centre are there, not only to explain the proposal, but more importantly to listen to your ideas and views on the future...and record your suggestions.

You will receive a questionnaire which can be filled out at the Information Centre, or, if you'd prefer, mailed from home later on. And you'll also receive a copy of a comprehensive 52 page book that explains the proposal.

Your feedback is an important part of the process in meeting tomorrow's energy needs.

Davis accepts responsibility

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Dysart's reeve has accepted responsibility for the decision to send a municipal truck to Peterborough for costly repairs.

Bill Davis says he pursuaded council to authorize the work because of a break-down in communications."

"I will take the blame," said Davis in an interview last Wednesday. "I have no problem taking the blame."

The controversy began at last month's Dysart council meeting when councillor Murray Fearrey questioned Road Superintendent Jim Taylor about an $11,000 repair bill from Winslow-Gerolamy in Peterborough.

Fearrey criticized the fact that the job had been done by an out-of-town repair shop instead of a local business.

Later, Taylor told The Times he had received authorization for the repairs. He also said he hadn't seen the repair bill prior to it being brought to the meeting so was unable to explain why the bill was $4,000 higher than the estimate.

After investigating the bill, Taylor said he found a $2,000 error which Winslow-Gerolamy agreed to deduct from the total. The remaining $2,000 was accounted for in additional work that had been done on the truck which wasn't part of the estimate.

Taylor says he was "caught dumbfounded" when Fearrey asked him about the bill during the meeting because he hadn't seen it. If it had been brought to his attention earlier, Taylor says he would have been able to discover the error and explain the cost of the additional work.

As far as taking the truck out of town, Taylor says there would have been a two- or three-day delay if he had taken the truck to the Haliburton Truck Centre. He says he took the truck to Peterborough only after getting council's approval at the January meeting.

Taylor says he has "nothing to hide" and always tries to deal locally if the price is competitive.

Davis says council agreed to send the truck to Peterborough because "the system failed."

"If anyone wants to lay blame, council authorized it," said Davis. "I knew it was going to Peterborough."

He calls the situation a "comedy of errors" and says part of the problem was the fact that it was his first meeting as reeve of Dysart. "I just assumed, because of the size of the job, that it had to be done in Peterborough," says Davis. "It was a communication problem that has been corrected."

In future, Davis says all work will be done locally if the price is competitive. "The system is now corrected," said Davis. "Everyone who was involved has been spoken to and no one disagrees that we should shop locally. In council's opinion the situation is rectified."

Pro-lifers stacking Liberal Association ranks

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

An effort by the pro-life movement to stack the delegate selection process for the Liberal leadership convention is "underhanded" according to president of the local Liberal association.

Warren Rahn, president of the Victoria-Haliburton Federal Liberal Association says the pro-life tactic will likely have a serious effect on the delegate selection process.

The Liberal party will be chosing a new leader in June, and each riding sends a number of voting delegates to the convention. Delegates will be elected by the party membership in each riding.

But members of an anti-abortion group, calling themselves Liberals for Life, have begun buying large blocks of memberships in order to ensure that pro-life delegates are sent to the convention.

Rahn says that locally, the Liberals for Life have been so successful in signing new members, they will dominate the delegate selection meeting.

"It is a bit upsetting and kind of underhanded," says Rahn. "This group is coming in and dominating the whole procedure without representing the true feelings of the people or the party."

Rahn says he objects to the attempt to elect single-issue candidates no matter what the cause. The association has not adopted either a pro-choice or a pro-life stance, he says.

Normally the Victoria-Haliburton Federal Liberal association has about 150 registered members although not all of those would usually turn out for the delegate selection meeting.

This time Rahn says he expects about 200 hundred people out to the April 17 meeting and of those he says almost 100 will be members signed up by the pro-life group. All 100 memberships were brought in by a single person, said Rahn.

Peterborough is facing a similar situation with the pro-life movement holding 50 per cent of the 350 memberships.

He says single-issue delegates should not be sent to the leadership convention. "We want delegates who are interested in all the issues and represent all Canadians," said Rahn. "These single-issue delegates will be replacing dedicated Liberals.'

He doubts the commitment of the pro-life members to the party. "If real Liberals were involved they would have joined a long time ago," says Rahn. He says the pro-lifers didn't get a membership from the association.

Victoria-Haliburton will be sending a total of 20 people to the convention.

County presses lakeshore route on Deep Bay

Despite arguments in favour of rerouting a section of Deep Bay Road, the County Roads Committee will be pressing ahead with its plans to upgrade the present roadway along the lake.

"After considering the alternatives of the reconstruction of Deep Bay Road . . . the Roads Committee has decided to proceed with rebuilding the road along the lake," committee chairman Bob McCausland said in a letter to Lutterworth Township Council. The letter also went out to property owners in the area.

County Engineer Bill Obee said costs were the major factor in the committee's decision.

The committee had been asked to reconsider its plans to upgrade the the section of County Road 2 running along Deep Bay on Gull Lake. For a variety of reasons, including safety concerns, property owners had asked the county to reroute the road away from the lake instead of upgrading the existing road.

After considering that option and the costs involved, the committee has decided to go ahead and upgrade the existing road. Guide cables will be installed along the outside edge of the road, McCausland said in his letter, and the area will be posted with a maximum speed limit of 40 km per hour.

Any existing docking facilities will be relocated by the county if they are structurally sound, the letter continues."The county will attempt to inconvenience you as little as possible while the work is being done."

Obee says the road reconstruction will be done this year. A cottage and a boathouse that sit on the road allowance will still have to be moved, he said.

Battle over 12 delegates

Rahn, as president, and Liberal Candidate Bruce Glass will go along with 12 delegates elected by the membership, and 6 people to serve as alternates.

If the pro-life movement controls a large enough number of voting memberships, Rahn says it's possible they could pick all 12 of the delegates from their ranks.

Potential delegates are nominated by the membership, and then each member votes for the 12 delegates of his choice. The 12 candidates receiving the most votes will be sent to the convention in June.

Of the 12 delegates, four must be men, four must be women and four must be youths.

There is little the association's executive can do to stop the pro-lifers from dominating the delegate selection process, admits Rahn. An effort is being made to inform the party membership about the attempt being made to stack the election, and all members are being encouraged to come out and vote on April 17.

The deadline for buying a party membership is March 20, and Rahn says he is encouraging people from the "community as a whole" to join the party.

WANT TO APPEAL YOUR ASSESSMENT?

You still have time to appeal your 1989 assessment if you feel your home or business property has been improperly assessed. Your assessment is important because the amount of property tax you will pay in 1990 depends on it. The assessed value of your property is multiplied by the municipal and school mill rates to determine your property taxes.

Notices of Property Valuation were mailed to property owners and tenants whose assessments have changed since last year. Open house information sessions were held in your area to give you the opportunity to ask questions and correct any errors.

The Assessment Roll was delivered to your municipality on February 27, 1990 and will be used to calculate the taxes you will pay in 1990. You can review the Roll at your municipal office during regular business hours. If you believe your property has been improperly assessed and you have not yet registered an appeal, you still have until March 20, 1990 to mail or deliver your appeal to the Assessment Review Board. And remember, even if you did not receive a Notice of Property Valuation, you still have the right to appeal.

Appeal deadline: March 20, 1990

The Assessment Review Board is an independent tribunal under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Ministry of the Attorney General. It is intended to provide you with an additional opportunity to have your assessment reviewed if, in your opinion, it is not fair and equitable with the assessment of similar properties in your area. The Review Board is more informal and relaxed than a regular court of law. You may present your own case, retain a lawyer, or ask a relative or friend to speak as your agent.

To help you in filing your appeal, Notice of Appeal forms are available from the Assessment Review Board, your Regional Assessment Office, or your municipal office. You can also use the reverse side of a Notice of Property Valuation, or write a letter giving the property address and roll number along with your reasons for appealing. Appeals should be forwarded to the Regional Registrar of the Assessment Review Board at the address shown below.

If you appealed your previous assessment, it will be necessary to lodge an appeal against your assessment with the Assessment Review Board each year, if the appeal against your previous assessment has not yet been settled, or your 1989 Notice of Property Valuation does not reflect the most recent decision of the Board.

In those parts of Ontario designated for French Language Services, you can appear before a bilingual (English/French) Appeal Board. Please check the space provided on your appeal form if you wish to use this service.

Cottagers fear development on Bat Lake

Severance to create four lots could ruin the lake, association president says

The Bat Lake Cottagers Association has two weeks to convince the Ministry of Natural Resources to halt further development on their shores.

And unless they are successful, Minden Council is prepared to grant approval for a rezoning that will allow a property owner to make severances that will create three new lots on the lake.

After hearing objections to a rezoning application for Mr. and Mrs. Yates 20-acre parcel of land, council gave two readings to the by-law. The final reading will be held over until the next regular council meeting on March 22.

"This gives you two weeks to come back with any strengthening of your objections," Reeve Ray Moore told the representatives of the cottagers association.

Tim Koivusaoo, president of the 12-member association, argued that over-development of the shoreline will ruin the small, shallow lake.

Koivusaoo said the lake averages about 10 feet in depth and there is very little water flowing through it. He said he has already witnessed an increase in algae growth and a decrease in water clarity and fears that further development will compound this problem.

Over the past 20 years, Koivusaoo said the number of cottages on Bat Lake has increased from four to 14. Continued monitoring of the lake's clarity has demonstrated a steady decline. He said the algae growth gives off foul odour that smells like rotting cabbage.

"My only concern is Bat lake is not going to be good for anyone," he told council. "Past experience shows human activitiy on the shores is detrimental."

In spite of his concerns, council received no objections to the rezoning from any of the provincial ministries involved. Deputy Reeve Bern Berry said he had contacted the Ministry of Natural Resources that morning and was told they had no problems with further development. Ontario Hydro and the Ministry of Environment also voiced no objections to the rezoning.

Reeve Ray Moore said council has to rely on these government bodies for their knowledge of environmental matters. He said councillors are not not experts in this regard.

The application meets all the municipality's planning criteria, and with no objection from the ministries, council has no reason to turn it down, said Moore.

However, he said that if the association can convince the Ministry of Natural Resources to object to the application, council may reconsider. "If you have information strong enough to sway the MNR, we might say 'don't do it.'

Koivusaoo then asked council to request that the Yates conduct a lake capacity study to determine if the lake is capable of handling further development.

However, the Reeve said he can't recommend that action. Moore suggested this is something the association might ask for if it pushes the matter to an Ontario Municipal Board hearing.

Frustrated at council's refusal to comply with their wishes, another resident then stood up and voiced his dissatisfaction. "You might as well fill in the whole lake, because it's useless then," he said. "Eventually this will be a garbage heap . . . a washroom, so to speak."

Peggy Schultz, another association member, asked where they could find information that might convince council to reject the application. She noted that this small lake has been called a bog and said the Ministry of Natural Resources has been making an effort to better manage wetlands in the province.

The Deputy Reeve told her she would have to go to the ministry for information. As long as the ministry has no objections, council's hands are tied, he said. "Who am I to say?" It would be up to the ministry to say whether the lake can stand more development, said Berry.

The Yates own 42 acres of property on the lake. A previous severance split that into two large lots and they are planning to further sever one of the lots into four small lots.

Koivusaoo told council the association had no objections to the Yates' initial plans to sever the entire 42 acres into four large lots.

Councillor Mike Maher said this severance proposal will create four lots where there used to be one. He said it does not invite much more development than what would have been available with the creation of four large lots.

Maher said it is highly likely that the people who buy the lots will also be concerned with the welfare of the lake and take whatever measures are possible to minimize the impact.

If the association does confront the ministry with its concerns, Maher said it is conceivable it will close off the lake to further development.

Ross Warburton, who owns property in the area, took exception to Maher's statement. He said that if the township is going to recommend a stop to further development, other property owners on the lake should be notified. Warburton said people with large properties would be wise to "dump now before it happens and they can't develop it."

Maher replied that he was not recommending a halt to development. Only the ministry could make that decision, he said.

Bilingual printing a waste of resources : Maher

Curbing the growing demand for bilingual government literature will also reduce the number of trees that have to be killed to produce paper, a Minden councillor demonstrated last week.

Brandishing copies of the Ontario Municipal Act, Councillor Mike Maher illustrated how much paper is being used to provide government literature in both of Canada's official languages.

One copy of the Act was an older English-only version. The other, which was three times as thick, contained both French and English.

"They had to kill a lot of trees to make up the paper for this," Maher said. Instead of printing one version of the act in both languages, seperate copies should be available. He said this would cut down on the waste.

"If I wanted one in French, I would have bought one in French," he said. "I don't think that's an anti-French argument. It's a resource argument."

Minden Council has recently received criticism for passing a by-law to declare English as the working language for the corporation. Critics have labelled this decision a discriminatory move.

"It's dissapointing to me that they're trying to brand us as bigots," Reeve Ray Moore commented. "I don't think there's a bigot on council. It's a little bit ridiculous."

Maher took the opportunity to illustrate his point just as council was about to deal with some corresepondence from Snowdon Township on the matter. Snowdon Council previously passed a resolution requesting a government survey to determine which municipalities require literature in either official language. Snowdon is seeking support for this resolution from all municipalities in the county.

Minden did not formally endorse Snowdon's resolution at this meeting.

Home hosts World Day of Prayer

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

We have had some beautiful days lately although it has been cold.

The Thursday tea party was held in the auditorium. The Lady of Fatima Catholic Church of Minden provided the lunch and it was delicious. Along with our lunch we enjoyed some very nice music. The music was played by Mike and Connie Biagi, Frank Faulkner and Doris. I am sure the Residents appreciated it all, both lunch and music and they thank everyone who contributed to the happy afternoon.

Thursday evening we played Bingo with Ed Formenko calling the games. We thank him for coming and doing a good job.

Friday morning the auditorium was prepared for the World's Day of Prayer which was held from 2 to 4 p.m. There was a large number in attendance. There was a lovely tea served after. The topic was on Czechoslovakia. Father Parker of Minden Catholic Church gave a resume of the history of Czechoslovakia and their struggle to have peace and freedom in their own country. Several people read portions of the program and a group of ladies sang.

After dinner on Sunday as Myrtle O'Halloran was leaving the dining room she fell and broke her hip. We are sorry this happened and wish her a speedy recovery.

Chapel service was conducted by Revered John Burgess with Alice Jones at the organ Sunday evening. There was a very good attendance considering so many were suffering from an assortment of ailments. Thank you Rev. Burgess and Alice, your efforts are appreciated.

Ruth Kellett came to see Mable Buttery on Saturday. Sunday Ron Newbatt and his daughter Kelsey came for a visit.

Monday Jean Hewitt and Anna Gordon took Pearl Lyle out for dinner so Pearl could use her Christmas present.

Evelyn Coleman came Monday for our Bible Study Hour. One of the women we studied was Delilah who had Sampson's hair cut so he lost his strength. Thank you Evelyn.

Linda English left Monday morning for a three week vacation in Florida, we sincerely hope she has a happy holiday.

Residents' Council was held in the craft room. There was a very good attendance. Several problems were discussed and decisions made. It was a constructive meeting. We were sorry Rheta Jones was unable to attend.

Tuesday I went to Peterborough to see my sister since Terry was going. I spent the day with May & Ray. May is home from the hospital but she has a long way to go yet to be herself. Norma Barnum and her mother, Clara Austin came back with us. Clara had fallen Saturday night and broke arm.

Pastor Murray from Allsaw Pentecostal Church was here Wednesday evening and held a service in the main lounge.

Long term controls regarding pollution

The Ministry of the Environment has determined that Haliburton needs a long-term pollution control plan with regards to waterfront development.

This determination has been made during the review of Dysart's proposed sewage plan expansion, and will affect not only that project but all future development plans.

A final decision on the fate of the sewage plant expansion in Haliburton village was supposed to have been made by February 28, but as of Friday, the Minister of the Environment had yet to make his decision.

A source in the Ministry office, who didn't want to be identified, told The Times that instead of looking at environmental impact on a case-by-case basis, the ministry wants to review the entire Lake Kashagawigamog drainage basin.

The need for longer range study applies directly to the sewage plant expansion, the source said. The entire lake chain is effected and the ministry wants to study other causes of deterioration in water qualtiy, not just the sewage plant.

Dysart applied to have the sewage plant expanded in order to build a sewer line extension to service resorts along the north shore of Lake Kashagawigamog.

However the expansion plan was met with concern by cottage associations in the area who have requested that the project be "bumped-up" and a detailed environmental assessment of the proposal be carried out.

Environment Minister James Bradley was supposed to have made a decision on the project in January, but granted an extension until the end of February to allow the township to try and address specified concerns.

On January 9, a meeting was held in Toronto between ministry personnel, Dysart Reeve Bill Davis, Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins and the township's consultants for the project.

The intent of the meeting was to try and resolve any problems with the expansion proposal and avoid the lengthy environmental assessment requested by the cottage associations.

At the meeting, the ministry representatives identified seven particular points that concerned them about the sewage plant expansion.

Included in the lists of ministry concerns were;

*a more detailed assessment of the sewage plant's impact on the Drag River and Grass Lake,

*a long-term monitoring program for the sewage plant's performance and,

*and that resort connections be phased in, allowing for any problems that may develop to be addressed during implementation of the new sewer line.

The ministry source says attempts were made to address the concerns but not to complete satisfaction. "Some of the things we can live with, but there's some work still to be done."

Besides the effect of the sewage plant, the ministry also wants to look at septic tanks and the effect of increased population.

The ministry's Environmental Assessment Branch has completed its review of the plant expansion and has forwared recommendations to the minister.

Bradley has three options regarding the proposal. He can order that an individual environmental assessment be conducted as requested by the cottagers, he could ask for further work to be done on the consultant's report, or he could deny the request to "bump-up" and allow the project to proceed.

The source would not say what the environmental assessment branch has recommended but said only that it involves a long-term pollution control plan.

Bradley decision is expected at any time.

Medals awarded as 185 seniors compete in annual winter games

The older adults of Haliburton County once again gathered at Deer Lodge for the annual Haliburton Senior Winter Games. The events held on February 5 and March 5 saw a total of 185 "young at heart" seniors enjoy a full day of friendly competition and social interaction. Arriving early in the morning they were treated to coffee and muffins by our genial hosts, the Teljeur family. The morning passed quickly with games of euchre, cribbage, bridge, bingo and the ever popular "deer races". A delicious roast beef dinner was served at noon before the serious competition began in bridge and euchre.

On February 5 the gold medals for bridge were won by Lenore and Hadden Gillespie, with the silver going to Ursula Dymott and Thelda Weston. Ross Agnew and Vic Matthew were the bronze medal winners.

Euchre saw Olive Daniels and Verna Sawyer winning the gold, and Beulah Cowen and Greta Curry taking the silver. Third place winners receiving the bronze medals were Ethel MacDonald and Helen Dugan and the prize winner for the most lone hands was Anne Winger.

The first Winter Games of 1990 was a great success and many returned in March to again enjoy the hospitality of Deer Lodge. Winners that day in bridge were: gold medals to Jean Jackson and Jane Graham, silver to Mike Collins and Evelyn Morgan, bronze to Marjory Peel and Helen McCracken.

Charlotte Ruttan and Ken Wallace won the gold medals for euchre with Ruby Bird and Ruth Parkes winning the silver. The bronze went to Margaret Bull and Bill Kleinschmidt, with Myrna McCarthy having the most lone hands.

At the shuffleboard table in February, a gold medal went to Gladys Peck. In March the gold went to Karen Henderson and Catherine Juby with Gladys Peck and Lil Parker winning the silver.

The Haliburton Senior Games will be officially opened for 1990 on April 20 at the Haliburton County Home Support Services luncheon to be held at the Stanhope Community Hall. Registration forms will be available at that time for the Senior Games which will begin on May 14. This will be a big year for the Games as Actifest '90 will be held in London, in August. All adults over 55 are welcome to participate.

To reserve your place at the luncheon, please call 457-2941. For more information regarding the Senior Games you may contact Dorothy at the Drop-In Centre (457-2171).

Suggestions well worth considering

Suzuki's readers have some ideas of their own about cleaning up the environment

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

Each week I receive dozens of thoughtful letters expressing concern about environmental degradation and searching for causes and solutions that are well worth considering.

Here are a few.

From Dr. Martin Hammerli, an engineer in Gloucester, Ont.: "It is obvious that we need to wean ourselves off our steady oil diet in the transportation sector which causes over 50 per cent of all air pollution.

"Hydrogen as an energy currency has the potential to be utilized in a non-polluting way by fuel cells for example instead of internal combustion engines ... a fuel cell operated vehicle emits only water vapour and waste heat.

Pharmacist Dave deBourcier of Kelowna, B.C. notes: "The levels of mercury in fish, of antibiotics in domestic animals, of herbicides and fertilizers in game birds and animals has led to warnings and cautions against using the flesh from the creatures in our diet.

"Yet people do continue, both knowingly and unknowingly, to consume these sources of food ... These creatures are not at the top of the foodchain — we are.

"If plant and animal life can be shown to have unacceptable levels of dangerous chemicals in their systems, are we not justified in presuming that mankind will have even higher levels in his system? ... It would serve a very good purpose ... if all dead persons were required to have each of their organs examined and tested for all poisonous chemicals prior to release for burial or cremation."

H. Rainnie of Mamore, Ont.: "The only solution is to tie the unused natural resources to the amount of money creditted to a country, in other words, natural resources saved must show as a credit in that country's international bank account.

"The same would be applicable to families and individuals.

"Only when unused (commercially) natural resources are worth more on the international market than when they are used for unnecessary GNP will any real effort be put forward to conserve and replenish them."

Global deforestation is of concern to many.

From Kirkland, Que., John English and Margaret Ford write: "Any responsible municipality would pass a bylaw stating that every (new) commercial property be obliged to plant and nurture one tree for every so many square feet of commercial buildings and every so many acres of commercial property be forced to support, by their taxes, so many square yards of Green Space or parkland (preferably treed parkland) ...

High school student, Pat Wilson of Vancouver, B.C., notes: "It is true that the Amazon is destroyed on a much larger scale but there is destruction here in British Columbia.

"A trip out to Tofino will reveal the deforestation of the Canadian rainforest. The economic concept and environmental abuses are parallel. Let us not be hypocrites but lead by example and end our own foolishness."

She is echoed by Betty Mae of Edmonton, Alta.: "The problem with the Amazon jungle is not just 'their' problem; the problem with our forests in Alberta is not just 'our' problem; these and many, many other environmental problems worldwide are the responsibility of EVERYONE. This planet Earth is just too small, too fragile, too precious, to let this continue."

Bill Sinclair of Mississauga, Ont., describes how his family is trying to live in a responsible way:

Minden's development controls a 'crying shame'

Editor:

In response to the Monday, February 26 article in The Times: Isn't it a crying shame? Proposed controls on new development for Anson, Hindon and Minden. Forgive them Lord for they know not what they are doing.

One man again tries to ruin it for the whole town because of a personal conflict with one developer.

If it were not for excavations we would not have our beautiful new Home Hardware Store, the nice looking log structures on Verne Graham's former property, extended parking at Dr. Holliday-Rhodes' or Doug Johnson's, Guardian Drugs Plaza, the site being developed by the Fruit Market on the Bobcaygeon Road or the three new excavations on the Mountain side of the Bobcaygeon Road of which proposals have been submitted for two of the three sites. I believe Council speaks with a forked tongue when they say they are for development and at the same time try to create more red tape to prevent any site preparation development prior to Site Plan Agreements and Building Permits. In the last couple of days I have had the disgusting task of viewing parts of this document which is unbelievable and in my opinion not legal and probably not done by a lawyer and it has to be done by the Zoning By-Law not a Building By-Law.

The bottom line is there are a lot of discrepancies not backed up by law and I will probably be the first one to contest it and sue for damages. You can pass all the By-Laws you want but that doesn't necessarily make them legal. The other thing is all people are equal in my book and if some people are being dealt with through this By-Law and some are not; I am not above laying charges against the person designated to enforce for failure of duty. Keep this in mind, this is a bigger job than what the municipality can afford to handle. It boils down, in my opinion, to one influential man who does not understand development, so when you don't understand, you say no! Also when you say no there is little work to be done and no meetings to attend. However, when you say yes, there is a lot of work to be done and a lot of meetings to attend. The ironic part of the whole thing is when you say no, you get paid the same amount as you would for saying yes but fewer meetings to attend. The most unbelievable part of this is a slim few have almost persuaded the press that this is the right thing to do. Come on now, you have lived in towns other than Minden and seen excavation sites and you will find out progressive communities do not impose regulations like this and you know this is the best thing that has happened to Minden in 20 years. All we need is council to lead the way, not block the way.

I don't believe for one minute that this By-Law was adopted for the benefit of the taxpayers and I don't believe the majority of taxpayers are complaining. I believe it was spearheaded by a personal vendetta to the detriment of the community.

Are some people jealous because other individuals will take a risk to make a few bucks on a development? It certainly appears that way.

Also they want a letter of credit before any development can take place. This is another form of preventing commercial development in Minden. Having a 60-day time limit on an excavation shows how ludicrous this By-Law is and how much they do not know about development.

All three sites along the Bobcaygeon Road did not need municipal approval for excavation and the only reason they have sat for more than 60 days is because they did not want to allow severances, because Doug Johnson and Ted Reid would have built last fall if Municipal Approval and Severances had been granted. I would have too, because I applied for severance last July and did not receive approval until February of this year at a great deal of added expense. A loss of about $8,000 to $12,000 in Tax Assessment, because of this and a few other problems. I have appointed myself as the municipal watch dog and will report to the taxpayers on a periodic basis until the next municipal elections.

Minden.

News from Staanworth Court

February

When February tires
Of her sombre dress,
She tucks ice diamonds in her hair,
With charming carelessness.
Sometimes she enfolds herself
In cloak of ermine snow,
And always, at her waist she wears,
A beautiful Valentine-red bow.

Our February meeting opened with 13 members present and Holly C. presiding. Fern Donnelly informed everyone that all Seniors Buildings are included in the use of the new bus being purchased by Hyland Crest.

A very tasty roast beef dinner was enjoyed by our folks. Buns, salads, pies and cake made up our menu with the beef prepared by Lillian D. who was in charge of the meat. Doris F. warmly welcomed our new residents, Maxine Cross and Fred Knight. We hope they will find us very sociable and co-operative.

Siiri Mielonen had her daughter Arene and her husband Roy Hersberg visiting with her and helping her to move to her new Apt. 109.

Mary Baldwin of Peterborough paid her father Henry Howe a few days visit recently. She returned home during our recent sleet storm safely.

I must say, at this time, that I was very happy to have my daughter Glenda Campbell from Lloydminster, Alta. visit me and her brother Garth and Shirley Horsley. She was very impressed with our life in Staanworth Court and the family atmosphere that prevades our social events. All-in-all, she left with a contented feeling that "all is well" with Mom in Staanworth Court.

So sorry to report that Lillian Davidson has returned to Minden Hospital. We wish you well Lillian, and may you soon be able to come back home.

I understand that Sylvia Howard has been transferred from Minden Hospital to Hyland Crest. We hope you will enjoy your stay there, Sylvia. We shall try to see you often.

Just think! Twenty more days till spring and our snowbirds thoughts turn north. Those who found winter quite lacking in charm and hastened to Florida where it was warm—with a promise to return.!

Return to basics, says reader

"Purchase of a small efficient automobile, use of a heat pump, recycling via the blue box, use of public transit, consuming less meat, bicycling for short trips, use of lower wattage light bulbs, use of hand tools, shopping for non packaged products, use of green products, clothes washing in cold water, composting, repairing rather than replacing (my last car travelled over 276,000 km), using health services responsibly, discussing responsible family planning with our two teenage children, keeping fit, keeping informed, talking about ecology as the occasion arises with friends and family, making our views known to our local politicians and we try to defend our delightfully forested neighbourhood from 'developers.' "

I received a letter from Kate Gundlach of Grensbogen, West Germany, after her visit to Canada: "I enjoyed the wonderful nature during our trip, the fresh air and the friendliness of the Canadian people, but I was disappointed when I saw that you don't have any separation of your garbage. People said: 'It is no problem. We have space enough to dump it.' But what a stupid meaning! How shortsighted! I was surprised too to hear that you need not pay for your water in your houses! Here in Europe we soon will be choked in garbage. We don't have space any longer. So preventing is better than healing!"

March 5, 1990

No outward-only show was this,
Lest some would say you'd been remiss;
As you came and talked, we knew
You came because you wanted to.

Our grateful thanks to all who came,
You kissed and hugged and spoke his name;
You offered up a helping hand,
Or quietly came to sadly stand,
And tell a favourite reminisce;
You took his hand, and bent to kiss.

You sent your love through many things,
With pies and cakes and coffee rings,
And bread and tarts and casseroles,
Our home was full of brimming bowls.

Your cards, so thoughtfully picked out,
Gave us a needed lift,
A card, you know, with friendly words,
Is such a loving gift.

The flowers you sent; the gifts you gave
In memory of Stan,
Made this family proud to be
Part of such a man.
Its very comforting to know
You, too, were sad to see him go.

With grateful thanks to everyone for the love which you gave to me, and to my family, when Stan left us.
He lives! For he is dearly loved, and love can never die!

Are you a Baby Saint?

St. Joseph's Hospital is planning hundredth birthday bash

If you or someone in your family was a Baby Saint - that is, born at Saint Joseph's General Hospital in Peterborough - the hospital would like to hear from you.

As part of its 100th birthday celebrations taking place this year, Saint Joseph's has launched a "Baby Saints, Where Are You?" program in which it will issue a commemorative Centennial Birthday Certificate to anyone who was born there since it was founded by the Sisters of St. Joseph in 1890. Records indicate that, although the hospital began taking patients in 1890, no births occurred until 1909. The last were in 1974, when the Obstetrics Department closed as a result of the rationalization of health services in Peterborough.

Hundreds of people have requested certificates since the program began recently, and more arriving every day. It is hoped that the Baby Saints program will help the hospital locate the oldest living person in the area who was born at Saint Joseph's. He or she will be invited to the hospital's own birthday party in August and receive a special presentation.

To get your certificate, write to Baby Saints Program at Saint Joseph's giving the name and date of birth. The certificate, which measures about 8" x 10" and is suitable for framing, will be mailed to you. The hospital asks that people not phone in their requests.

A flair for science

Kinmount Public School students showed off their scientific talents last Wednesday during the annual science fair at the Kinmount Community Centre.

As usual, there were dozens of outstanding projects in both the junior and intermediate divisions of this competition. The students with the top three projects in each division received ribbons for their efforts. The top two in each division will have the opportunity to take their projects to Victoria County Science Fair at I.E. Weldon in early April.

In the Junior category, Carrie Pearson (Gr. 6) took top honours with her project, which demonstrates how cholesterol contributes to heart attacks. Marty Dettman (Gr. 6) took second place with his project about human senses. Anthony Weerdenburg (Gr. 4) entered a project about composting to take third place.

In the intermediate category, Jessica Franzen (Gr. 7) and Dayle Gray (Gr 7) took first place with their project called 'Short- and long-term memory'. Cathy Beverly (Gr. 8) and Jennifer Stender (Gr. 7) combined to take second place with a project about Gypsy Moths. Christina Windrum (Gr.7) and Cori Barkwell (Gr. 8) teamed up to win third place with their project on carbohydrates.

HEART AND STROKE FOUNDATION OF ONTARIO

♡ THE HEART FACTS

Q. How does what I eat relate to my chances of having a heart attack or stroke?

A. If you eat fatty foods -- such as butter, whole milk, ice cream, cream cheeses -- or use saturated oil in cooking, your body is taking in too much fat. Eating these foods can lead to a build-up of fatty deposits in the arteries of your heart. Clogged arteries are the leading cause of heart attack and stroke.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Committee looking for 'truck drivers of the sky'

Editor:

If you can remember what life was like before television and FM radio, read on. If once you could buy a new car for $600 (if you had such a fortune) and an ice cream for a nickel, carry on.

If, in your time, cigarettes were fashionable, pot was what food went into, and if it was a rabbit it had four legs (certainly not four wheels), then possibly you are of an age to be a Second World War veteran. And if you are an ex-serviceman or woman, were you with the Air Force? If so your old comrades are looking for you, especially during this year that is so significant in the annals of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

In 1990 there are two special reasons to get Air Force vets reminiscing and celebrating and geared up for the annual get-together of the Allied Air Forces Reunion in Toronto come September. Reason number one is the fiftieth anniversary of the start of the wartime Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada. Reason number two is the epic Battle of Britain, which 50 years ago inflicted upon Nazi Germany its first major defeat.

The "old lags" of the Allied Air Forces Reunion group have initiated a campaign to track down all the men and women in Canada who wore the blue uniform between 1939 and 1945. Korean war vets are also being sought. At its peak wartime strength, the RCAF had a population of more than 215,000, including 15,000 in the Women's Division. Now all ranks of all trades — flying and ground personnel — are being invited to resume their contacts with comrades, squadrons, units to share the nostalgia of experiences, the pride of service, the sense of dedication to country and cause. Memories might fade; they don't disappear.

Practically every RCAF/RAF type here was involved with the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, which was by far the biggest air school in the world, and mostly Canadian manned. It made a vital contribution to winning the war.

In retrospect the statistics are astounding. Between April 1940 and March 1945 a total of 131,553 aircrew were trained in Canada. Of these 72,835 were RCAF personnel and 25,747 of them were pilots. Across this land there were 360 air force schools on 231 sites training not only pilots but navigators, bombaimers, wireless operators, air gunners, flight engineers, and ground crews in dozens of trades.

Trainees came from around the globe, mainly Britain, Australia and New Zealand. Also there were Americans prior to their country's entry into the war.

Incredibly, on the eve of war in 1939, the RCAF strength was a dismal joke: a grand total of 4,061 officers and men, ground and aircrew, and nearly half of them part-timers. At the beginning of 1940 that total had doubled to a still meagre 8,287. Nevertheless, 126 Canadian fliers were soon to be in the thick of the crucial Battle of Britain. The first engagement of an RCAF pilot with an enemy aircraft, in May of 1940, was by Squadron Leader F.M. Gobeil. A few hours later he became the first Canadian to shoot down a German plane.

Skilled ground crews, trained in Canada, were soon vitally employed backing up the fliers in RCAF and RAF squadrons in all theatres of war in all kinds of weather. They had their share of unrewarded heroes.

Therefore all who served, from the so-called "truck drivers of the sky" to the truck drivers on the ground, are invited to contact the volunteer head-hunters and head-counters of the Allied Air Forces Reunion. Call 519-426-0313, or write to Allied Air Forces Reunion, Box 472, Station A, Islington, Ont., M9A 4X4. It will be like joining up again (without the needles!).

Battling for religious education

Editor

I am writing in response to the article I read in your paper: 'Board Cuts Religion Classes'.

I was very annoyed with this final decision. First they remove the Lord's Prayer, and now the teaching of the scriptures. What next? Are we losing our freedom as a nation altogether? Where are our men with backbones, or have they become cowards?

We need to stand up and fight issues as they come to us. We are in a battle whether we want to admit it or not. Let us help our children and their children's generation now.

Our nation was built and founded on Godly principles and we ought not to try to make changes to discredit our country. Let's not be afraid to stand alone if need be in order to keep our nation free and strong and allow the younger generation to see freedom as we have in our past generations.

Who can really say to me or anyone else what harm our Lord's Prayer or Bible teachings will do to our young lives, but to help them do better and be good, honest and sincere persons as they grow up? By taking all this away, what else do they offer? Nothing, except drugs, alcohol and sex. Is this what we want for our children?

I was raised with a Christian heritage and I have seen both sides. From my experience, I would not trade Christianity for anything else this world has to offer. I was able to make my own choice, which I believe is necessary. It is necessary for our children to be able to see the non-Christian and Christian views and let them decide for themselves.

In conclusion, I challenge all parents to think seriously about this issue and don't shrug it off by saying "it doesn't concern me," or, "I don't care". Let's get together and fight for our freedom and that of our families. Let's not let courts and dominent men tell us how we have to live and by whose rules.

Help save our land and give our children a heritage of moral and Godly background, one they would be proud to pass on to their grandchildren.

Will you help us fight?

Ruth McKnight

Bring in your plastic bags

Editor:

Once again, I suspect your readers have hundred of plastic shopping bags at home and don't know what to do with them. Perhaps they don't want to take them to the landfill site because they know the bags are bad for the environment.

I have a suggestion to solve this problem. There will be another Plastic Bag Recycling Depot at the Archie Stouffer School on Friday, March 30 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Any pieces of paper left in the bag (including sales receipt) will ruin the recycling process. The bags should be turned inside out so that we can be sure the sales receipts have been removed. There will be a display at both the IGA, Valu Mart, and the IDA showing how to put your bags together.

Matthew Heffer,
Co-ordinator.

Trimming world population growth

Editor:

It has occurred to me that the woes of the world could be cured if the human population were self-limiting.

If men stepped forward and offered to receive Vasectomies, the world population change could alter our present path of self world destruction.

Think of it. Even Pro-Choice would have their arguments disappear. The problems are source related and treating symptoms won't cut it.

No Wiebe.

Cutter/skidder course offered

The Ontario Ministry of Skills Development recently announced that loggers working as cutters and skidder operators in the province's forests will now have to be trained and certified. Under this policy, employees hired before the first of last October will be certified by October 1, 1990 and new employees will have one year from the date they were hired.

Regulations under the Occupational Health and Safety Act have been amended so that employers engaged in cut-and-skid logging operations are now required to set up and maintain a training program that will enable their employees to comply with the Training Standards outlined in a document published by the Ministry of Skills Development. These standards consist of various skills in nine different training units. A cutter-skidder operator certificate will be available for an employee who had demonstrated an ability to satisfy all of the skills identified in the training units. Accreditation is also available for those taking only the cutter or skidder operator portions of the program.

These regulations are administered by the Ministry of Labour and compliance with them will be required to carry on cut-and-skid operations. To comply with these regulations, employers are required to obtain copies of the Training Standards document and to register each employee that is to be certified. Each company is also to designate someone as a "signing authority" who is responsible for the quality of the training program. This employer is also responsible for findig a competent person to act as a trainer for his employees. As compliance with each of the skills is demonstrated, both the employee and the trainer sign their names. The signing authority's signature is required at the end of each training unit. When all training units have been completed, a trainee will qualify for a certificate.

The need for such a systematic training program throughout the province of Ontario has existed for some time. It has been recognized that there are a number of hazards associated with logging operations and that something was required to improve the skill levels of loggers so that there would be a decrease in the number and severity of bush-related accidents. To meet this need, the cutter/skidder operator program was initiated.

To assist local logging companies in getting involved with the certification program, a meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 20, 1990 at the Haliburton Legion at 7:30 p.m. A representative from the Forest Products Accident Prevention Association will be on hand to provide further details and to answer questions. Information packets, training standards, registration forms, training reports and applications for signing authority will be handed out. All persons using chainsaws to fell trees on the job are encouraged to attend this very important meeting.

CREA calls for interest rate cuts

The Canadian Real Estate Association (CREA) has called for a cut in interest rates following the federal budget.

CREA Vice-President Bill Hopkins says the Finance Minister's plan to reduce the deficit through cuts in projected spending is a major step in the right direction.

"We would have preferred a more substantial deficit reduction in the current fiscal year," says Hopkins, "however the tougher fiscal policy Mr. Wilson has put in place should allow some room for interest rates to move downward."

Hopkins points out that such a move would benefit the government through a reduction in the cost of carrying its deficit. "Our Association demonstrated in its pre-budget submission that a decline of one percentage point in interest rates would save Canadian tax-payers at least $1.4 billion annually in interest payments", he said.

Lower interest rates would also benefit every mortgage holder in Canada. However, it would take a drop of two full percentage points to make a significant impact on affordability for first-time home buyers. "We're a long way from that", says Hopkins.

In respect to affordability, The Canadian Association has a proposal before the Finance Minister to expand the use of RRSP holdings in the mortgages of plan holders who are first-time home buyers. Hopkins urged serious consideration of this proposal as part of a package to assist more Canadians in their attempt to enter the home ownership market.

Hopkins regrets the necessity for a reduction in CMHC's social housing budget of $51 million over next two years. "These cuts are a challenge to the private sector to be more innovative in responding to social housing needs," he says.

The Canadian Association has a blueprint for private sector action as a result of a symposium it sponsored with CMHC. The blueprint deals with such matters as tapping vacant existing stock for social housing purposes.

"If we succeed in lowering interest rates and reducing the deficit, Canada will have more resources to direct toward affordable housing," Hopkins concluded.

Ottawa working hard to cut the national deficit

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Canadians and their government have been working hard since 1984 to get control over Canada's finances and ensure a strong economic future. Our actions have been part of a long-term, consistent and comprehensive plan, which is continued in the February 1990 budget.

The results have been encouraging. The total deficit, the difference between what the government spends and what it raises in revenue in each year, has been reduced by $8 billion since 1984. At the same time, the after-tax incomes of Canadians have risen, and over one and half million jobs have been created.

But recent events have driven home the need to reduce the deficit even further. The rise in interest rates means more money must be spent just to pay the interest on the public debt, money that gets added to the deficit. And the deficit itself is adding to the inflationary pressures which cause higher interest rates in the first place.

Getting off the deficit treadmill is what this budget is all about. It introduces a two-year focused effort to control spending that will save Canadian taxpayers billions of dollars. It means we will be able to cut the deficit in half in just three years, starting with a drop to $28.5 billion next year. The deficit will be down to $14 billion by 1993-94, and to $10 billion the year after that.

The government recognizes that controlling spending on a wide range of programs is the best way to reduce the deficit and keep it down. Accordingly, the budget contains no new taxes.

Over the next two years, some programs will have their spending growth capped at five per cent a year. Others will be frozen, and some will be reduced or eliminated. However, there are no changes to personal income support programs for seniors, families and veterans, and Unemployment Insurance benefits. The spending control program was designed with fairness in mind.

The government will also save taxpayers money by making its own operations more efficient. For example, Crown corporations that no longer require public ownership, such as Petro-Canada, will be sold off. Others will be wound up, while profit-making Crown corporations will be asked to return more to the government in the form of dividends.

Finance Minister Michael Wilson made it clear in the budget that it is only through a committed effort to reduce the deficit that Canada will be able to continue to afford vital social programs. A lower deficit, together with higher investment, will set the stage for sustainable, non-inflationary growth. Those are the objectives of the plan we set out in 1984, and continue to be our objectives today.

The budget measures are tough, but necessary. It won't be easy, but the government is determined to do what is right for Canada. Our future, and our children's future, depends on our determination to act today. As Wilson pointed out, "We must not fail in our resolve. We must continue to face our problems squarely. We must grasp the opportunities that are at hand to build the Canada that we want for ourselves and for future generations."

Happy Birthday Mom & Dad!
Well, it will be one year on March 14, since I got my new parents Lisa & Casey Cox. They have been real good to me during my first year so I think I'll stay around for awhile.
But just remember Mom & Dad, my grandparents Freida & Joe Cox, Brian & Carol Dunham, plus my great grandparents, Mel & Doris Foster, who just finished babysitting me, and I thank them, think I'm a pretty great little guy and have often told me I can come and live with them anytime.

Love,
Chad Victor Cox,
Born March 14, 1989

The family of Ernest Voycey invites friends and relatives to his 80th birthday at West Guilford Community Centre on Sunday, March 25, from 1 to 4 p.m. Best wishes only. 3BC

IN MEMORIAM

WARBURTON, Joseph. In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away March 14, 1988.

'Tis said memories are golden,
Well that may be true,
But we never wanted memories,
We only wanted you.
If tears could build a stairway,
And heartaches make a lane,
We'd walk a path to heaven,
And bring you home again.
Our family chain is broken,
And nothing seems the same,
But as God calls us one by one,
The chain will link again.

Lovingly remembered by Ross, Joan, Dwayne, Christine, Cory & Shawn.
